NTEX Express

The need for Express shipments normally occurs when something has gone wrong in the supply chain and time is a critical factor. Through our wide experience in this field we have built up a broad base of different types of vehicles well suited for any type of job. For example we have cars, vans and of course our trailers available and can carry anything from small parcels up to 27 tons. Our Express specialists know that as quickly as possible with both suggested solutions and prices.

Depending on the demands we find solutions, sometimes unique, for each job with the right vehicle size depending on the shipments weight and size, with one or two drivers depending on the distance, with change of drivers along the route depending on the distance and how critical the time is. We know that when there is a call for an Express job all other solutions have failed and that this is the only remaining alternative which also means that we cannot fail.

We monitor our Express shipments in every detail not only to be able to report deviations but to be able to predict and avoid them
